

The Claretian Echo

You ain't been anythinged until you've been Echoed

VOLUME 2: ISSUE 66

SEPTEMBER 18TH 2013

“Time turns our lies into truth”

Healys refresh ref

Dazza takes aim

Returning Darren Jordan was ordered to brush up on his shooting before re-joining the club. It appears he may have taken the advice a little too seriously, as he is now wanted in six US states and by a chicken farmer in Galway.

Trigger happy Dazza

St Clarets GFC once again finds itself in the middle of a disciplinary storm, after secret pictures emerged of the Healy brothers plying top London official Sean Corridan with alcohol just minutes before a vital Clarets' Championship game that Corridan was due to officiate.

The sight of the Healys downing pints just before throw-in is nothing new to Claretian fans, indeed it is now an established part of their pre-match ritual. However, encouraging an official to join them is a new dimension to their delinquency.

Ref shocker: The Healys and the Healing Crew along with Corridan

Club officials are anxiously awaiting a letter from the Board on this matter. That said, Matt assures the club that if a penalty is imposed, he has a few other photos that will make it all go away.

Dancing Donaghy goes all native

Do-gooder Claretian Aidan Donaghy has this week announced that he will be leaving the club for a short sabbatical, during which time he will be joining a Native American tribe's desperate search for water.

Donaghy, who has spent the past four weeks undertaking an intensive course in rain dancing, believes he has the skills to help the drought stricken tribe awaken the rain gods.

Having studied several John Wayne movies, as well as the recent Johnny Depp Lone Ranger flick, Donaghy believes that he is equipped to help end the ten-year drought that the Dry Creek tribe has been suffering.

Donaghy (left) has perfected the rain dance made famous by Big Chief Leaking Tap (right)

